The NewAccessHardware.com is a Big Hit

San Leandro, CA – Since its launch in late March 2015, the new and improved AccessHardware.com has proven to be a popular and valuable resource for specifiers, system integrators and installers alike. Their positive feedback has been overwhelming and the visitor numbers are off the charts.

Users appreciate the clean, contemporary look and the flexibility of a responsive site that is fully-compatible with smart phones and tablets. An improved navigation system with drop-down menus allows visitors to quickly find the content they are looking for without having to click deep into the site.

The centerpiece of the new site is the redesigned and reimagined Manufacturers section. Organized alphabetically in groupings, users can now easily distinguish manufacturers by their logo – which links to that manufacturer’s dedicated page. Each page includes a description of the manufacturer and its product lines/applications, as well as downloadable PDF documents including specification sheets, installation sheets, price lists, warranties, technical data sheets and more. In other words, everything you are looking for is in one place.

The new Resources section provides helpful information in the form of training videos, newsletters, press releases, links and tutorials. There is also a large selection of short door hardware and access control product videos covering a wide range of topics, including the ever-popular “Buy It from Bill” video series, which provides a light-hearted take on access control products and trends.

An exciting new feature of the site that debuted July 13, 2015, is the monthly Flash Sale page. Each month customers can order featured products at greatly reduced prices until stock is depleted.

Access Hardware is always dedicated to providing great customer service and support. A new Chat Function provides quick response time to those with inquiries. An operator is ready to answer questions during normal business hours. If it's after hours, a request may be submitted and an operator will respond as soon as possible.

Representative can also be reached by filling out the new contact form on the improved Contact Us page. The Contact Us page also has a map – which allows the user to easily get directions or save the location to their Google maps. To learn more about Access Hardware Supply and the wide range of access control equipment and accessories it has to offer, visit the new, improved website at AccessHardware.com
